INTRODUCTION

The Ninth Bulletin of North Carolina Morbidity Statistics, which covers the calendar year 1940, contains tabulations of the same type as those found in previous Bulletins.

In 1940, 32 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever were reported from 19 counties, as compared with 41 cases from 21 counties in 1939. There were 629 cases of malaria reported from 28 counties in 1940 as compared with the same number from 31 counties in 1939.

Measles case reports in 1940 totaled 3,685 as compared with 20,031 cases reported in 1939. This decrease is considered normal in view of the gradual decline in number of cases after a peak year of incidence. Reported cases of whooping cough in 1940 decreased to 5,500 from the total of 9,321 reported in 1939.

Comparative statistics for other diseases during 1940 and 1939 are: Diphtheria 1,125 cases in 1940 and 2,368 in 1939; pellagra 97 cases in 1940 and 214 in 1939; smallpox 6 cases in 1940 and 15 in 1939; undulant fever 11 cases in 1940 and 25 in 1939; typhoid fever 238 cases in 1940 and 343 cases in 1939; tularemia 12 cases in 1940 and 26 in 1939; scarlet fever 2,442 cases in 1940 and 2,599 in 1939; poliomyelitis 74 cases in 1940 and 116 in 1939; chicken pox 4,360 cases in 1940 and 3,765 in 1939.

The most decided increase in the reported cases of any one disease in 1940 as compared with the preceding year occurred in Vincent's infection with 134 cases in 1940 and 14 in 1939. As this disease was not made reportable until 1938, it is felt that this increase in reported cases is probably due to greater interest in reporting those cases that occur.

The reporting of the venereal diseases during 1940 reflects in an interesting manner the progress of the North Carolina venereal disease control campaign. There appears to have been a leveling off of syphilis case reporting, which, however, does not mean there was any slackening of the control work in this field. In 1940, 21,333 cases were reported as compared with 30,985 in 1939. Adequate syphilis control continues to be a major activity of the North Carolina State Board of Health and its local health department clinics. Chancroid case reports in 1940 decreased from 321 in 1939 to 264. The statistics on the reporting of gonorrhea reveal a definite increase over the preceding year, 4,594 in 1940 and 3,800 in 1939. It is felt that this is clearly the result of the new emphasis on the diagnosis and treatment of this disease. Recent educational work in the venereal disease control program has stressed especially the seriousness of this disease and the importance of early and adequate treatment. Clinic facilities for the treatment, as well as the diagnosis, of gonorrhea have aided considerably in the success of this program since their establishment in the local health departments of the State.
